March 26, 2012 at 6 p.m.

Competition: 60 questions

- The competition will begin promptly at 6 p.m! The competition is open to medical students, residents, interns, fellows and neuroscience graduate students from any university. Feel free to forward application to others who may be interested.
- All structures will be identified from a PowerPoint presentation using whole and cut gross specimens, myelin stains of whole brain sections for fiber tracts and nuclei, intraoperative photographs, CT, MRI and angiograms including arterial and venous phases. A laser pointer will be used to identify the structure to be named.
- One minute to answer each question. No talking during the examination.
- Spelling does not have to be perfect, but must be such as not to be confused with another structure. All judges' decisions are final.
- The correct answers will be discussed following the end of the examination; during this period, pizza and beverages are provided. Announcement of the winners follows review of the answers.
- In case of a tie, a sudden death round of questions will be administered until a winner emerges.
