The SleepDry system—
a sensitive approach to bedwetting problems

Understanding the bedwetting child.
Most bedwetting children are unable to recognize the body's natural signal of bladder fullness while asleep. The bedwetting child lacks the ability to awaken and use the bathroom, or control the bladder till morning. You may be aware that coaxing, limiting fluids, or waking them in the middle of the night doesn't work. Children need help from a monitor that can be there all night long.

How the SLEEPDRY alarm stops bedwetting.
The alarm sounds at the first sign of moisture, and interrupts the wetting process. The SLEEPDRY alarm conditions the child to quickly recognize bladder fullness, and awaken before wetness occurs. Complete success usually takes just four to twelve weeks.

A child-friendly approach to the problem.
The SLEEPDRY system uses an advanced motivational program developed in consultation with a leading clinical psychologist specializing in enuresis treatment. Included in the program are fun reward materials, and many of the most effective techniques that medical studies have shown to solve bedwetting.

SleepDry program is more effective than other methods

A. Children are slow to outgrow bedwetting. Studies indicate that only 14% of untreated children between five and nine outgrow the problem annually. Parents and children are left with years of wet beds and frustration.

B. Medication offers limited results. Bedwetting tends to reoccur when medication is stopped. Consult your physician.

C. Bedwetting alarms are a breakthrough. Consistent reports show a cure rate of about 75%. However, 25% of the children still need something additional.

D. Bedwetting alarms with motivational programs work best. Cure rates are very high. This increased success is achieved through very consistent use of an alarm with good motivational and drybed methods.

SleepDry alarm—easy and simple to use

Easy snap-on attachment.
The small SLEEPDRY alarm snaps onto pajama top or t-shirt, and the wetness-sensor also snaps onto regular underpants. No sewing required.

Children enjoy using the program.
The "Star" character on the alarm is presented as a gentle friend that helps the child earn their own Starry Reward Button after 30 dry nights. Children look forward to their prize, and cooperate well.

Highly effective with older children too.
Also included in the program are suggestions for using the alarm with a more mature child. They'll gain confidence for sleepovers.

Completely safe and reasonably priced.
The SLEEPDRY alarm is a natural approach—no medication—no side effects. The entire SLEEPDRY program costs just $53.95* You'll be happy to learn that what you'll save on expensive Pull-ups® and daily laundry can pay for the SLEEPDRY program! The SLEEPDRY alarm is so successful that we offer a complete satisfaction guarantee.

* Plus postage and handling.
 The SleepDry alarm is highly effective when the alarm and complete program are used every night. Please see current details.
 In addition, the SleepDry alarm comes with a full one year operational guarantee.
